Many towns have a community garden, but few provide gardening space in a location as scenic as the one in Gloucester Township.

When a Gloucester Township community gardener straightens up from pulling weeds, she takes in the surrounding view — 28 acres of open fields, woodlands and marshland along a branch of the Big Timber Creek.

The Gloucester Township Community Garden also shares grounds with the Gabreil Daveis Tavern, the municipality's own colonial-era structure bearing the date 1756 at the top of its tall chimney.
